I. Report of the Board of Visitors

   Chairman Warr called on Mr. Felkel who thanked the Board for the invitation to join Trustees for its meetings and lunch. He then recognized members of the Board of Visitors (BOV) whose terms of service were ending: Brody Glenn, Hank Jolly, Melissa McLeod and Jack Osteen.

Mr. Felkel said that the BOV began its year with members attending the State of the University. As always, he noted that in their role as ambassadors, BOV members made every effort to learn more about each of the University’s academic units. This past year that involved meetings held at the Darla Moore School of Business, the School of Journalism in the College of Information and Communications, and the Dodie Anderson Academic Enrichment Center.

BOV also enjoyed participating in homecoming and in the opening celebrations for the new Alumni Center. There also was a large contingent at this year’s Carolina Day at the State House. BOV members also enjoyed a social time together at which they cheered the Gamecocks to a baseball victory over the Furman Paladins.

As the BOV continues to move forward, Mr. Felkel said that each member would continue to do their part in terms of the recruitment of students, encouraging those who have been admitted with letters, phone calls, and personal visits. The BOV also has been very involved with Cockey’s Reading Express, supporting its 10-year anniversary and its Crowdfunding Project, and helping to celebrate distribution of its 100,000th book.

Mr. Felkel announced that Jazuun “Jay” Outlaw of Dillon, South Carolina, was the 2016 recipient of the BOV’s Thomas Stepp Scholarship. The BOV has been working with the University’s Vice President for Development to identify potential donors; working with Palmetto College to spread information about that program and to identify potential students; and working with Wes Hickman and Jack Claypoole to implement a specific plan for the BOV to assist with the University’s advocacy efforts. The BOV also is continuing to work on funding for the Achievement Tower, which was a vision of former BOV member Beth Phibb.

IV. Report of the Alumni Association

Chairman Warr called on Mrs. Bethea who said that for two years she had been blessed to sit with her fellow Board members as they “grappled with one difficult decision after another, always placing the University’s students first.” She described her colleagues as having “sought wise counsel from the most talented staff and leadership in higher education today and, without doubt, the best president in the nation. The combined leadership of our staff, our president, and each of you, has made our state a better state through the quality education offered at this magnificent University.”

Mrs. Bethea said she was excited to have followed in her husband’s footsteps as a member of the Board of Trustees, both of them considering their service on the Board “as special seasons in their lives.” She said that during her two-year tenure, she worked daily with other governors of the Alumni Association to bring Trustees the support of the University’s nearly 300,000 alumni. She said that for two years, “we worked to build you a home from which you can effectively lead and for which we hope you are suitably proud. During that time, we also built stronger connections with today’s students and strengthened the core of our most committed alumni members, our life members.” In passing the baton to the Alumni Association’s next leader, Tommy Preston, she said she was pleased to report that the state of the association was strong. She continued:

In the truest spirit of the Gamecock, we are never satisfied with the present. The same way we rallied to build this building, we will now rally to construct a new association. One that begins its connection with our students early on and stays with them for a lifetime. One that adds value to their student experience and one that helps them along a lifetime of career and community choices. We have the right team at My Carolina to move us to the next level and beyond.

My Carolina serves; serves you; serves our students; serves our administration; serves our alumni; and indeed, it serves our greater community. Jack Claypoole is the epitome of a servant-leader, and he and the My Carolina Team will continue to delight you in ways that will transform the Alumni Association and support the Univeristy in palatable and unprecedented ways.

This association, however, is about you. That is why we need you. There are some of you in this room today who are not members of My Carolina. But I want you to know that I have your membership forms with me, filled out and ready for each of you to join before you leave. Whether you are a trustee, whether you are a governor, whether you are a visitor, or whether you are staff, we need you and we are worthy of your investment. I promise.

Today, I can tell you in all humility that I have never been prouder to be a Gamecock. I am so proud of my University. We are a community joined together by similar experiences and held together by a love for our alma mater. To each of you on this Board, the words “forever to thee” are more than a repetitive line in a treasured song. They are a call to forever connect and forever serve the University of South Carolina. While roles and titles are but words, my love for this University and for each of you is truly forever.

I’m not going far. I look forward to seeing each of you regularly. But even when I am absent, I want you to know that I so appreciate the singular honor and this wonderful opportunity I have been afforded to serve the University which has given me so very much. Thank you.

Chairman Warr and President Pastides then presented Mrs. Bethea a framed resolution, which Chairman Warr called on Secretary Stone to read.

PRESENTED THIS 24TH DAY OF JUNE 2016
AT COLUMBIA, SOUTH CAROLINA

Chairman Warr moved adoption by acclamation of the resolution signed by him, President Pastides and Secretary Stone.

V. Report of the President

Following presentation of the resolution to Mrs. Bethea and before his report to the Board, President Pastides briefly wished incoming Alumni Association President Tommy Preston good luck in “filling the shoes” of Paula Harper Bethea. “This University has been privileged, honored, blessed to call Paula President of My Carolina during a time when this association has flourished beyond measure. She is really a servant and friend and a beloved partner of Carolina. You epitomize and you are the emblem of the University of South Carolina.”

Beginning his report to the Board, President Pastides welcomed and thanked members of the Board of Visitors for their attendance. “We know that you have an even greater capacity to help and lead the University, and we will be looking for ways to call on you again. Please know that you have done more than any Board of Visitors in the past and we are so grateful for your service.”
President Pastides continued that “It’s been a great academic year with many accomplishments, but let me look into the future for a few moments.” He reported that the University had received more than 25,000 freshman applications in Columbia for the Class of 2020 and about 37,000 applications around the system for freshmen admission. He added that over 56,000 applications – a record number – had been received throughout the USC system when counting freshmen and transfers.

“Given that orientation is still going on, it’s difficult to measure the hard number who will be here specifically in the fall, but we should be very close to our Measured Growth total of 5,200 freshmen in Columbia, including nearly 500 in the South Carolina Honors College where we received over 3,000 applications.” President Pastides said that the University anticipated enrolling about 1,500 transfers in Columbia this fall, which meant nearly 6,700 new students would be welcomed to the Univeristy of South Carolina in Columbia. Each of the University’s campuses around the state also will enroll larger classes, which will result in more graduates that will lead to the University having more impact, he added.

President Pastides also noted improvement in how the University uses orientation to prepare students at USC. “We’ve moved to a two-day orientation for incoming freshmen. Last year we asked them how we did, 97.5% agreed with the statement, ‘After attending orientation, I feel better prepared to attend USC in the fall.’ He said that the Columbia campus will host 10,648 visitors this fall, inclusive of visits by rising seniors in high school and their families. President Pastides continued:

The campus also is buzzing this summer with students who are accelerating their academic progress. On Your Time is no longer a concept, it is a reality here at USC. We are one of the few major universities that has shown that you can be flexible, and even bend over backwards to help students keep on track to graduate in no more than four years, or even less time. As of this week, we have 12,097 students enrolled in summer courses here in Columbia, the most we have ever had, with many more sure to register later in the summer.

When I was young, ‘summer school’ was for those who flunked courses and needed to retake them. Forgive me, but we used to say that summer school was for the dumb kids. But now, it’s the smart kids who take the summer courses. Summer courses and online courses are important tools in controlling debt by providing a surer path toward four-year or even earlier graduation. I am proud to say that USC led the way in asking and convincing the General Assembly to allow lottery scholarships to be used in the summer. Thanks to you, as well, Paula for working hard for that reality.

This week, an article in the Washington Post noted that spending extra time in college is the leading cause of skyrocketing debt with 60% of national college debt occurring in years 4-6. By the way, 46% of USC Columbia students do not borrow anything at all and those who do, have a low total borrowed money with an average debt of $28,233 – not insignificant, but well below both the state and national averages. More good news. USC students get jobs and repay their debt dutifully. Our students’ three-year default rate is only 4.1% compared to 11.8% nationally.
President Pastides then updated Trustees on various construction projects: Renovations continue at Pinckney/Legare on the Horseshoe and South Tower; construction on the new Law School continues on time and on budget for a Summer 2017 opening; and construction is underway for the new student health center, a 68,000-square foot facility that will bring modern physical and mental health programs to one central location in Summer 2017. Work also is underway on the track and field complex in Columbia and the Aiken Bridge will be completed this December.

“On the other hand,” President Pastides said, “The year ahead promises to be both active and tumultuous for higher education institutions. This past Tuesday I was in Washington and met with about 100 other college presidents from across the country. We all anticipate a much more active student body and, generally, more active communities next academic year. They may be committed to any of a number of pertinent issues and we will be prepared to work with them. I feel confident that our University’s philosophy of holding honest and open conversations throughout the year, not just when you are in trouble but when you are not in trouble when times are calm, is really how you earn the trust of the students and other constituents. I appreciate the ongoing support and dialog I have with our student government leaders and also for the tremendous commitment of our Faculty Senate led by Professor Augie Grant.”

In closing, President Pastides again recognized the contributions of Paula Harper Bethea. He then thanked the Board of Trustees for passing the University budget.

“Although you approved a small tuition increase, it was done knowing that our financial management is sound and nationally recognized. US News & World Report ranked Carolina as one of the most efficient universities in the country. Let’s tell that story. Princeton Review/Kiplinger’s ranks USC as one of the nation’s best values among U.S. public colleges. So can we have our cake and eat it too in this budget? By that, I mean can we continue to find ways to tighten our belts to address escalating costs of a college degree, while not decreasing the value of a Carolina degree? I say yes. It won’t be easy…it never is, but this is a prudent and sensitive budget and it is the best way I know for our University to continue to be accessible and excellent, affordable and superb. And I thank the members of the Board for their endorsement of that.”

VI. Other Matters

Chairman Warr announced that the August 19 meetings would begin at 9 a.m. with a meeting of the Ad Hoc Committee on Strategic Planning, followed by meetings of the Executive Committee, the full Board and the Audit and Compliance Committee. He also reminded Trustees that
