Carolina Scholar K. Lee Graham discusses her online presence

. . . . “This exchange is only a fraction of the sweet-as-pie kindness that exudes from K. Lee. The former Miss Teen USA pageant winner and Instagram elite holds about 32,000 followers on the photo-sharing application. When scrolling through her profile, you are met with candid smiles, breakfasts that are almost too cute to eat and uplifting messages. “Instagram allows me to kind of put out the images that I have in my head to the world,” K. Lee said. “It’s my matter of self-expression.”

Carolina Scholar EA Matthews shares her faith

. . . . “I participated in Young Life in high school, and I knew I wanted to lead in college. You go through an intensive training process for a few months, and then a background check to make sure you’re qualified to lead high school students. It’s something I’ve wanted to do since 10th grade. It changed my life, and I wanted to give back.”
