

Cameron Eubanks serves as the Speaker of the 115th Student Senate for the University of South Carolina. He is a Junior from Lexington, South Carolina in the College of Arts and Sciences. He is majoring in International Studies and Criminal Justice, with a minor in Theatre. Cameron hopes to attend law school after his undergraduate studies and pursue a career in the legal field.

As a native of South Carolina and an involved member of the greater Lexington-Columbia community, Cameron has an immense love and passion for this university unlike any other. He is excited to see the positive impacts and changes that he will be able to make to the student experience during his term as Speaker of the Student Senate.

Cameron joined Student Government freshman year as a Student Senator in the 112th Student Senate where he represented the College of Arts and Sciences in matters pertaining to the student experience. He then went on to serve another term as a Senator for the College of Arts and Sciences in the 113th Student Senate where he served as the Chairman of the Academics Committee and went on to pass over thirty pieces of legislation all of which were focused on transforming the student experience for the better. Following his consecutive terms as a Student Senator, he most recently served as the Director of Student Services in the Office of the Student Body President where he worked alongside Student Body President Reedy Newton to enact positive change and reform on several issues plaguing the student experience.

Outside of Student Government, Cameron has performed in several productions for the University of South Carolina's Department of Theatre and Dance and is an active member of the Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity and the Phi Alpha Delta Pre-Law fraternity. He also has served as Chief Page for South Carolina's Legislative Council Agency for the past three years and is an Eagle Scout in the greater Columbia community, where he partnered with the Alston Wilkes Society to provide over Four-Hundred transition bags to veterans in need within the community.

As Speaker, Cameron plans to realign and focus the Student Senate on legislation that transforms the student experience rather than legislation based on polarizing issues that have no concrete effect on the students we were elected to represent. Through this realignment, he plans to place tangible solutions for relevant issue areas such as academic advising, parking, campus safety, mental health, sexual assault/harassment, and issues surrounding student disability services at the forefront of the Senate's Legislative Agenda so that Student Government can put students first and transform the student experience for the better. Cameron also plans to reconnect the 115th Student Senate with key University stakeholders and build strong relationships with the other governing bodies on campus and beyond. Ultimately, as Speaker, Cameron plans to foster a more collaborative, synergistic, and productive Student Senate that streamlines student services on campus and transforms the student experience through tangible solutions.
