Noah Bryce Glasgow serves as the Speaker of the 114th Student Senate. He is a second-year International Relations major, with a minor in African American Studies from Forest Acres, SC. As a fourth-generation Gamecock, Noah has grown up around Carolina and the greater Columbia community. Since coming to the University, Noah immersed himself in student life experience through a multitude of ways. As an African American Studies minor, he is passionate about the intersection of race and public transit policy. Noah joined the National Association of the Advancement of Colored People his sophomore year, and is currently an active member. Noah is also a member of Omicron Delta Kappa Leadership Honor Society. Outside of school, Noah works at Target.

Noah has been a member of Student Government since his freshman year, where he served in the 112th Student Senate as a member of the Student Life and Inclusion & Equity Committees. Noah was elected to serve a full term for the College of Arts and Sciences in the 113th Student Senate and served as the Chairman of the Student Life Committee. During his time in the senate, Noah introduced and passed more pieces of legislation than any other senator and focused on improving accessibility on campus for disabled communities, removing financial barriers to run for office, and increasing accountability measures for members of Student Government.

As Speaker, Noah plans to place racial, disability, and sustainability equity at the forefront of the Senate's legislative agenda so that Student Government can best reflect the interests of the student body. He also plans to pursue expanded publication of reforms from the Title IX office, coordinate with the secretary of safety & transportation to assess Comet Shuttle routes, and work with his Chair of the Inclusion & Equity Committee to train senators on how to be activist within their communities for issues that impact marginalized populations.
