Academic Bulletin Description

A study of the United States founding documents that emphasizes how the experiences of African American citizens throughout history and culture shape the country’s values, norms, and ideals.

Full Course Description

Nikole Hannah-Jones writes in her introduction to The 1619 Project, “No one cherishes freedom more than those who have not had it. And to this day, black Americans, more than any other group, embrace the democratic ideals of a common good.” Students in this course will explore the evolving definitions of freedom in the United States through an analysis of the lives and writings of African Americans who have struggled to realize the country’s founding principles and core values. We will couple our study of the Declaration of Independence, the U.S. Constitution, the Federalist Papers, and the Emancipation Proclamation with deeper interdisciplinary inquiry into how the principles and provisions of these documents affect the everyday lives of black citizens from the seventeenth-century to the present. Central to this effort will be questions, readings, and assignments that help students to understand the societal values and norms that frame the call for self-governance, individual rights, and free expression. Students will be asked to identify and contextualize the consequences of these practices in the United States with particular attention to the ways that black Americans have worked to make the ethical codes and moral theories more inclusive.

Prerequisites

There are no prerequisites for this course.

Learning Outcomes

After successful completion of this course, you will be able to:

1. Identify the source and function of values through an analysis of the content and form of the United States founding documents, including the Declaration of Independence, the U.S. Constitution, the Federalist Papers, and the Emancipation Proclamation.
2. Compare the values, norms, and ideals of freedom expressed in the U.S. founding documents and selected works by African Americans.
3. Demonstrate an understanding of the importance of values, ethics, and social responsibility for the self and for contemporary society as discussed and brought out in a range of interdisciplinary writings and cultural materials by African Americans.
4. Reflect on how values shape personal and community ethics and decision-making, both within the texts an in the societies they describe.
5. Relate course discussions of values, ethics and responsibilities to students’ own capacities to address ethical and social challenges.
Carolina Core Outcomes

(VSR) Students will be able to examine different kinds of social and personal values, analyzing the ways in which these are manifested in communities as well as individual lives.

Course Assignments

Values Journal

Each unit will focus on a different value or ideal that is based on the U.S. founding documents: Democracy, Liberty, Equality, Popular Sovereignty, Justice, and Truth. You will be asked to keep a course journal of designated writing prompts and activities that: 1) relate the methods and frameworks of each value to the week’s required reading; and 2) applies an aspect of the value to your own social groups and lived experiences.

The journal entries are designed to focus your thoughts on a particular set of questions or ideas about the reading and on occasion, you will be asked to share what you’ve written. The assignments will most often be completed in class, although you may be asked to write a response or two outside of class. The journal will be collected at least twice during the semester.

Ethical Challenges Discussion Leader
For each unit that we study, the class will break into small groups for more focused discussion. Every student will have to serve as a discussion leader on at least one occasion during the semester. You will bring to class a description of a representative problem or ethical challenge from our contemporary moment that your group can work through, applying the historical lessons that we have learned in our readings about responsibility, accountability, and/or justice.

Beyond the Classroom Activity

During the semester, you must attend at least one campus event related to African American Studies. Within one week of the event, you must submit a written response that includes: 1) a description of the activity, and 2) its potential relevance to our study of how values inform, define, and condition the way lives are lived. (Minimum 500 words.)

Final Exam

The Final Exam will include a comprehensive mix of short answer questions (to test your knowledge of terms and concepts) and essay questions (to evaluate how you apply ideas through deeper analysis). Blue Books are not required.

Course Policies and Procedures

Attendance Policy

When you miss class, you miss important information. If you are absent, you are responsible for learning material covered in class. If you are absent when an assignment is due, you must have submitted the assignment prior to the due date to receive credit. If you miss more than 10% of the classes, whether excused or unexcused, your grade will be dropped one letter grade.

Academic Integrity

You are expected to practice the highest possible standards of academic integrity. Any deviation from this expectation will result in a minimum academic penalty of your failing the assignment, and will result in additional disciplinary measures. This includes improper citation of sources, using another student's work, and any other form of academic misrepresentation.

Plagiarism

Using the words or ideas of another as if they were one’s own is a serious form of academic dishonesty. If another person’s complete sentence, syntax, key words, or the specific or unique ideas and information are used, one must give that person credit through proper citation.

Class Conduct

Professionalism will be expected at all times. Because the university classroom is a place designed for the free exchange of ideas, we must show respect for one another in all circumstances. We will show respect for one another by exhibiting patience and courtesy in our exchanges. Appropriate language and restraint from verbal attacks upon those whose perspectives differ from your own is a minimum requirement. Courtesy and kindness are the norm for those who participate in my class.
Laptop/Smartphone Policy

The use of laptops and smartphones is allowed only when it is required for course assignments. Please place your laptop under your seat during class. Cellphones should be placed on silent and should be put away in your pocket or bag. If there is a serious need to leave your phone on vibrate (such as a family emergency), please let me know. If you happen to leave the class to accept a phone call, I will have advanced knowledge of the potential emergency.

Late Work/Make-up Policy

No late or make-up work is accepted. All assignments, quizzes, and exams are due by the deadline as posted on the course schedule.

Please plan accordingly, and complete these assignments in advance of their deadlines to ensure any unanticipated circumstances do not result in a missed assignment. User error does not qualify you for any kind of makeup or retake opportunity.

Completing and submitting the assignments or quizzes responses by the due date is the sole responsibility of you. If you receive an incomplete score because of failure to submit the assignment or test by the due date, then your score for that assignment will be recorded as "zero."

Late assignments and quizzes will be subject to the following penalty: 10% will be deducted from your grade for the first day late, and an additional 5% will be deducted on each subsequent day.

Be Careful: The clock on your computer may be different than the clock in Blackboard. If the clock is different by one second, you will be locked out of the assignment or quiz. Plan accordingly. I recommend that you submit your assignments, quizzes, and exams well before deadline.

Course Communication

I will be communicating with you regarding grades and assignments. If you need to get in touch with me, the best method is via email. Generally, I will reply to emails within 24 hours and will provide feedback on assignments within 48 hours.

If you are having trouble with this course or its material, you should contact me via email to discuss the issues.
