“WE HAIL THEE, CAROLINA”

(Tune: Flow Gently, Sweet Afton)

We hail thee, Carolina, and sing thy high praise;
With loyal devotion, rememb'ring the days,
When proudly we sought thee, thy children to be;
Here's a health, Carolina, forever to thee!

Today's Ceremony

Welcome to the University of South Carolina on this day of special recognition of our candidates for graduation. We hope you will find these ceremonies — a culmination of the efforts of the faculty, administration, our students and their families — both meaningful and impressive.

Commencement exercises for candidates for associate, baccalaureate, master's and specialist's degrees and certificates of graduate study are being held in four ceremonies on consecutive days. The Order of Exercises for the Friday morning ceremony is found on pages 3-4 and the listing of candidates for degrees on pages 33-44 of this program. The Order of Exercises for the Friday afternoon ceremony is found on pages 5-6 and the listing of candidates for degrees on pages 45-57 of this program. The Order of Exercises for the Saturday morning ceremony is found on pages 7-8 and the listing of candidates for degrees for this ceremony on pages 58-68 of this program. The Order of Exercises for the Saturday afternoon ceremony is found on pages 9-10 and the listing of candidates for degrees for this ceremony on pages 69-83. Separate ceremonies are being held for candidates of the School of Law and the School of Medicine and for candidates for doctoral degrees.

While awaiting the start of the ceremonies, you may wish to read the historical note on South Carolina's oldest university on the following pages. Founded on December 19, 1801, to promote state unity following the American Revolution, South Carolina College endured a complex history to become the University of South Carolina for good in 1906. This fall, we will commemorate 225 years of resilience, spirit and success, celebrating our continued leadership as the University FOR South Carolina and our enduring community, including each new graduate presented today. There follows a brief description of the Carolina Mace, symbol of the university's immortal dignity and of the combined endeavors of the university community, as well as a detailed description of the academic costumes worn by members of the processions and our candidates for graduation.

The exercises will begin with a series of academic processions. They are headed by the university mace party, followed by representatives of the university faculty, university officials and guests, university deans, members of the university Board of Trustees and distinguished guests, and the university president.

As the ceremonies close following the awarding of all degrees, the audience is asked to rise for the singing of the alma mater, after which the platform party will recess. The words of the song were penned by Professor G.A. Wauchope of the English department in 1911 and were adopted in 1912. The tune is that of "Flow Gently, Sweet Afton." The phrase "Here's a health, Carolina!" is repeated in Carolina's alma mater. Over the years, the custom has arisen of raising the right hand, with the fingers cupped, when the phrase, "Here's a health, Carolina!" occurs, as if offering a toast. The alma mater is always sung with heads uncovered.

Thank you for joining us for the commencement ceremony. Congratulations to the Class of 2026 — the newest alumni of the University of South Carolina.

CAROLINA — A HISTORICAL NOTE

“FAITHFUL INDEX TO THE AMBITIONS AND FORTUNES OF THE STATE”

The Palmetto State established South Carolina College on December 19, 1801, as part of an effort to unite South Carolinians in the wake of the American Revolution, promoting “the good order and harmony” of the state. The founding of South Carolina’s state college was also part of the Southern public college movement spurred by Thomas Jefferson. Within 20 years of one another, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia established state-supported colleges.

In the antebellum era, the Palmetto State generously supported South Carolina College. Its faculty included noted European scholars, such as Francis Lieber and Thomas Cooper, as well as renowned American scholars John and Joseph LeConte. Offering a classical curriculum, South Carolina College became one of the South’s most influential colleges, earning a reputation as the training ground for South Carolina’s antebellum elite.

South Carolina’s secession from the Union unleashed the devastation of the American Civil War, and the state and South Carolina College paid dearly. The institution closed for want of students, and in the ensuing decades, it struggled to regain its former status.

As Reconstruction from the Civil War proceeded, the state’s General Assembly chose the first African Americans to serve on the university’s Board of Trustees in 1868, and in 1873 the first Black students enrolled. While politically controversial, this development was an extraordinary opportunity at a time when opportunities for higher education were rare. The University of South Carolina became the only Southern state university to admit and grant degrees to African American students during the Reconstruction era.

Following the end of Reconstruction in 1877, South Carolina’s conservative leaders closed the university. They reopened it in 1880 as an all-white agricultural college, and during the next 25 years, the institution became enmeshed in the state’s political upheaval. South Carolina went through several reorganizations in which the curriculum changed and its status shifted from college to university and back again. The university also struggled to adjust to the arrival of intercollegiate athletics in 1892 and the admission of white women in 1894.

In 1906, the institution was rechartered for the final time as the University of South Carolina. In 1917, it became South Carolina’s first state-supported college or university to earn regional accreditation, and the 1920s brought the introduction of new colleges and degree programs, including the doctorate.

The Great Depression temporarily stalled progress, but the outbreak of World War II launched an era that transformed the university. South Carolina hosted naval training programs during the war, and enrollment more than doubled in the postwar era as veterans took advantage of the G.I. Bill. In the 1950s, the university began recruiting national-caliber faculty members and expanded its footprint with the establishment of campuses across South Carolina.

In 1963, the University of South Carolina became desegregated. As the result of a federal court order, Henrie D. Monteith, Robert Anderson and James Solomon became the first Black students to enroll at the university in the 20th century. Minority enrollment would continue to grow in their wake and was complemented by a substantial international student population in subsequent decades.

At the same time, the university was undergoing explosive growth as the baby-boom generation entered college. Enrollment stood at 5,660 in 1960 but nearly quadrupled 20 years later. That increase in the student body was accompanied by the introduction of many new programs, including three that would prove to be momentous.

University 101 became a national model for cultivating freshman-year success; the accompanying National Resource Center for the First-Year Experience and Students in Transition is based at the university. The international Master of Business Administration program, also launched in the 1970s, has consistently ranked among the country’s top three such programs. The honors program blossomed into the South Carolina Honors College and is hailed among the nation’s finest.

As the result of concerted efforts to expand its research capabilities, the university in 2006 was designated by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching as a research institution of “very high research activity,” the foundation’s highest classification. The university is one of a select number of public universities to receive both the Carnegie Foundation’s top-tier research designation and community engagement designation.

South Carolina’s Bicentennial Campaign helped usher in the 21st century as the university celebrated a 200-year legacy of educating leaders for the state, the nation and the world. In recent years, the University of South Carolina system has launched an online degree-completion program through Palmetto College. Together with the college’s four campuses across the state, the online program offers students greater flexibility to complete coursework and speeds bachelor’s degree completion. These comprehensive programs have helped the university secure its place as a first-choice destination for students seeking the lifelong value of a quality higher education experience.

UNIVERSITY OF SOUTH CAROLINA ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

Founded in 1846, the University of South Carolina Alumni Association connects students and alumni to advance their careers, their passions and this great university that we call home.

Commencement is the most exciting time of the year as we welcome thousands of Gamecocks to the ever-growing alumni family. We have a network of more than 40 global alumni clubs that are eager to connect you to life as an alumnus, no matter where your career may lead. Our affinity groups, such as the Black Alumni and Veterans Alumni Councils, can help you connect with Gamecocks who have shared experiences.

We want new graduates to stay connected to our programs and the hundreds of events we host each year.

Membership with the association is what makes these connections possible. Without the support of our members, we could not facilitate a global network of alumni clubs or award hundreds of student scholarships each year.

As a new graduate, you have access to a limited-time discount on a life membership and personalized Horseshoe brick bundle. Beyond helping us create a stronger Gamecock family, you'll also receive great benefits like access to Career Services, Thomas Cooper Library and hundreds of discounts.

You are a student for a short time but a Gamecock for a lifetime. Join the USC Alumni Association today and stay connected for life — uofscalumni.org/newgradlife.

THE CAROLINIAN CREED

The community of scholars at the University of South Carolina is dedicated to personal and academic excellence. Choosing to join the community obligates each member to a code of civilized behavior. Allegiance to these ideals requires each Carolinian to refrain from and discourage behaviors which threaten the freedom and respect every individual deserves.

As a Carolinian...

I will practice
personal and academic integrity;

I will respect
the dignity of all persons;

I will respect
the rights and property of others;

I will discourage bigotry, while striving to learn from differences in people, ideas, and opinions;

I will demonstrate concern for others, their feelings, and their need for conditions which support their work and development.

ACADEMIC COSTUMES

The academic costumes worn in today's procession and at other formal university occasions trace their origins to those worn by faculty members and students at medieval European universities. With only minor modifications, these costumes have remained largely unchanged since the 16th century. Standards for colleges and universities in the United States were established in 1895 with the adoption of an intercollegiate code that specifies design and color appropriate for various degrees. As in medieval times, the costumes worn on formal academic occasions denote the wearer's academic heritage.

The modern academic costume consists of three parts: the gown or robe, a headpiece and a hood. The gown denotes the wearer's level of education.

The baccalaureate gown is the simplest in design. Usually black, it is distinguished by a wide yoke with shirring in front and back and by open, flowing sleeves that end in a point. The baccalaureate gown is worn closed.

The master's gown is similar to the baccalaureate gown except that it has a closed or glove sleeve that is open at the wrist. The master's gown has no other trim and may be worn either open or closed.

The doctoral gown is full-flowing and has large, bell-shaped sleeves. It is trimmed with velvet panels down the front and has velvet bars on the sleeves. While black is still the predominant color for doctoral gowns, the trim may be in a color that denotes the wearer's discipline, or the color of the gown may denote the wearer's university. The University of South Carolina's doctoral gown is garnet with black velvet panels and bars. The university seal is embroidered on the panels. In today's procession, this gown is worn by the members of the Board of Trustees and university officers, chancellors, deans, faculty members and administrators.

The mortar board is the headpiece most often worn at American universities for formal occasions. It is appropriately worn with the board flat on the top of the head and with the tassel falling from the left quarter of the board. Tassel colors denote the field or discipline in which the wearer's degree was earned. Doctoral tassels are often gold. The soft velvet Tudor cap is also worn by many who hold the doctorate.

While the gown and headpiece denote the wearer's level of education, it is the hood that adds meaning and dimension to the academic costume. Changed little since medieval times, the hood is worn falling from the shoulders, down the back of the gown in a display of vivid color. It is edged in velvet, which by its color denotes the field or discipline in which the wearer's degree was earned, and it is lined in two colors of silk that represent the college or university from which the degree was earned. Hence, the University of South Carolina hood is lined in garnet and black and edged with the appropriate discipline color.

The USC president's ceremonial gown is black with four garnet velvet bars on the sleeves and garnet velvet panels down the front, all trimmed with antique-gold cording. The university seal is embroidered on the panels. Presidents are the only academics entitled to wear the fourth bar on their sleeves. The president's regalia is completed by a black velvet doctoral tam with an antique-gold tassel. The ceremonial hood is edged in garnet velvet and lined with garnet-and-black silk, representative of the University of South Carolina.

A partial listing from the Intercollegiate Code for colors signifying disciplines follows:

Arts, Letters, Humanities: white
Accountancy, Business, Commerce: drab
Education: light blue
Engineering: orange
Fine Arts: brown
Journalism: crimson
Law: purple
Library Science: lemon
Medicine: green

THE UNIVERSITY MACE AND PRESIDENT'S MEDALLION

The University Mace was designed and fashioned by Leslie Durbin, distinguished silversmith of London, England. Academic maces are historically regarded as manifestations of the “immortal dignity” of universities and thus represent the past, present and future. Officially adopted in 1967, the mace was presented to the university as a memorial to Susan Richardson Guignard by an alumnus, Dr. George Curry.

The brilliantly gleaming silver-and-gilt mace is nearly four feet long. Mounted on the head are the seal of the university, the seal of the State of South Carolina and the Great Seal of the United States. From the middle of these arises a stylistic representation of the State Tree, the palmetto, the fronds of which are formed by a group of 13 stars representing the founding colonies, which include South Carolina. The shaft is decorated with eight stars, reminding us that South Carolina was the eighth state to enter the Union.

The University Mace is carried in procession on occasions of outstanding importance, such as commencements, convocations and formal dedications. The placement of the mace on its stand signals that the proceedings are about to come to order; its retirement indicates the conclusion of the exercises. The mace is carried in procession by the president of Student Government and escorted by the university chaplain and representatives of the faculty, emeriti, alumni, the Board of Trustees and the university community at large.

The significance of the mace is mirrored in the Presidential Medallion and Chain of Office, which designate the wearer as the temporary embodiment of the institution's power and authority. The gift of the medallion accompanied the gift of the mace, and the linked silver Chain of Office was commissioned in 1991 by the Presidential Candidate Search Committee.

GONFALONS

The University of South Carolina's spring 2012 commencement ceremonies marked the inaugural presentation of gonfalons as part of the academic ceremonies. Gonfalons are heraldic flags or banners that were first used by Italian medieval cities to display coats of arms or other insignia. In modern times, the colorful banners have been adopted by many universities around the world as part of the pageantry of commencement.

The University of South Carolina has 23 gonfalons, one for each of the institution's eight campuses and for each of the 15 degree-granting colleges and schools on the Columbia campus. The Intercollegiate Code defines the traditional discipline colors for each college or school. Gonfalons for each regional Palmetto College campus and comprehensive university are inspired by the colors of each campus.

RONALD LEOPOLD

Ronald Leopold, executive director of the Anne Frank House in Amsterdam, was born in Groningen in the northern region of the Netherlands and studied history at the University of Groningen from 1978 to 1985. During his studies, he lived for two years in Budapest, where he wrote his master's thesis.

After graduating, Mr. Leopold held various posts at the Dutch General Pension Fund for Public Employees, where he worked extensively on policies for war victims and social justice. In 1990, he was employed by and later headed the Pensions and Benefits Council. In 2011, he was named executive director of the Anne Frank House in Amsterdam, one of the world's most visited museums dedicated to Holocaust remembrance and human rights education.

The Anne Frank House was opened in 1960 in the building where Jewish teenager Anne Frank and her family, along with four others, hid from the Nazis during World War II. The group was discovered and sent to concentration camps in 1944. Anne's father, Otto Frank, was the family's sole survivor. He returned to Amsterdam after the war and later published writings from Anne's diary, which she had written while in hiding. Anne Frank: The Diary of a Young Girl has been published in more than 70 languages. Today, the Anne Frank House in Amsterdam educates more than 1.2 million visitors each year about the Holocaust.

At the Anne Frank House, Mr. Leopold has overseen major museum renewal projects and expanded international educational initiatives, ensuring that Anne Frank's voice continues to inspire new generations around the world. Under his leadership, the museum has deepened its global reach through traveling exhibitions, digital storytelling and partnerships promoting tolerance and human rights.

Mr. Leopold's vision reflects a conviction that the story of Anne Frank is not only history but a call to empathy, courage and action. He has emphasized the human component of that era, noting that the events that took place all involved "people like you," who were victims, perpetrators, helpers or bystanders."

In 2018, the University of South Carolina was selected as a partner site of the Anne Frank House, one of only four such partners worldwide and the only one in North America. This selection was the result of a strong relationship forged among Mr. Leopold, former University of South Carolina President Harris Pastides, USC education professor Doyle Stevick, who is the founding executive director of USC's Anne Frank Center, and South Carolina scholars and educators who have committed to sharing the mission of spreading Anne Frank's message across North America.

Mr. Leopold lives in Amsterdam with his wife and daughter.

For his devotion to disseminating important lessons from history; for his commitment to partnering with historians and educators in Columbia, South Carolina, as well as in Berlin, London and Buenos Aires, to promote tolerance and advocacy worldwide; and for his untiring efforts to warn of the dangers of prejudice and discrimination and to proclaim the importance of freedom and democracy; the University of South Carolina, with the approval of its Board of Trustees, now presents Ronald Leopold with the honorary degree of Doctor of Humanities.

Degrees in Course

Friday Morning Ceremony

The following list of candidates for graduation was prepared before final grades were reported and inclusion herein does not constitute evidence of graduation. The listing of a name in this program should not be construed as an indication that the person will in fact receive a degree from the University of South Carolina at this commencement. Conversely, the absence of a student's name from this list does not necessarily mean that the person will not be awarded a degree. Honors for degree candidates are based on the institutional grade point average and earned hours at the time in which this program was published.

Honors printed on the diploma will be based on the final grade point average and earned hours on all institutional work. A dagger (†) following a candidate's name indicates Cum Laude. Two (††) and three daggers (†††) indicate Magna Cum Laude and Summa Cum Laude, respectively. A caret (^) following a candidate's name indicates the student is a veteran of the United States Armed Forces.

Degrees in Course

Friday Afternoon Ceremony

The following list of candidates for graduation was prepared before final grades were reported and inclusion herein does not constitute evidence of graduation. The listing of a name in this program should not be construed as an indication that the person will in fact receive a degree from the University of South Carolina at this commencement. Conversely, the absence of a student's name from this list does not necessarily mean that the person will not be awarded a degree. Honors for degree candidates are based on the institutional grade point average and earned hours at the time in which this program was published.

Honors printed on the diploma will be based on the final grade point average and earned hours on all institutional work. A dagger (†) following a candidate's name indicates Cum Laude. Two (††) and three daggers (†††) indicate Magna Cum Laude and Summa Cum Laude, respectively. A caret (^) following a candidate's name indicates the student is a veteran of the United States Armed Forces.

Degrees in Course

Saturday Morning Ceremony

The following list of candidates for graduation was prepared before final grades were reported and inclusion herein does not constitute evidence of graduation. The listing of a name in this program should not be construed as an indication that the person will in fact receive a degree from the University of South Carolina at this commencement. Conversely, the absence of a student's name from this list does not necessarily mean that the person will not be awarded a degree. Honors for degree candidates are based on the institutional grade point average and earned hours at the time in which this program was published.

Honors printed on the diploma will be based on the final grade point average and earned hours on all institutional work. A dagger (†) following a candidate's name indicates Cum Laude. Two (††) and three daggers (†††) indicate Magna Cum Laude and Summa Cum Laude, respectively. A caret (^) following a candidate's name indicates the student is a veteran of the United States Armed Forces. A lozenge (◊) following a candidate's name indicates the student is a dual degree BARSC and MD candidate.

Degrees in Course

Saturday Afternoon Ceremony

The following list of candidates for graduation was prepared before final grades were reported and inclusion herein does not constitute evidence of graduation. The listing of a name in this program should not be construed as an indication that the person will in fact receive a degree from the University of South Carolina at this commencement. Conversely, the absence of a student's name from this list does not necessarily mean that the person will not be awarded a degree. Honors for degree candidates are based on the institutional grade point average and earned hours at the time in which this program was published.

Honors printed on the diploma will be based on the final grade point average and earned hours on all institutional work. A dagger (†) following a candidate's name indicates Cum Laude. Two (††) and three daggers (†††) indicate Magna Cum Laude and Summa Cum Laude, respectively. A caret (^) following a candidate's name indicates the student is a veteran of the United States Armed Forces.
