

Can you Intro?

See the FIRST (and only the first) page of the hand-out

Quick Directions

GO!!

SPEAK UP!

When Communication Skills are on the FYE Syllabus

Dr. Chris Gurrie

The University of Tampa

cgurrie@ut.edu

Speech Communication Skills are Important

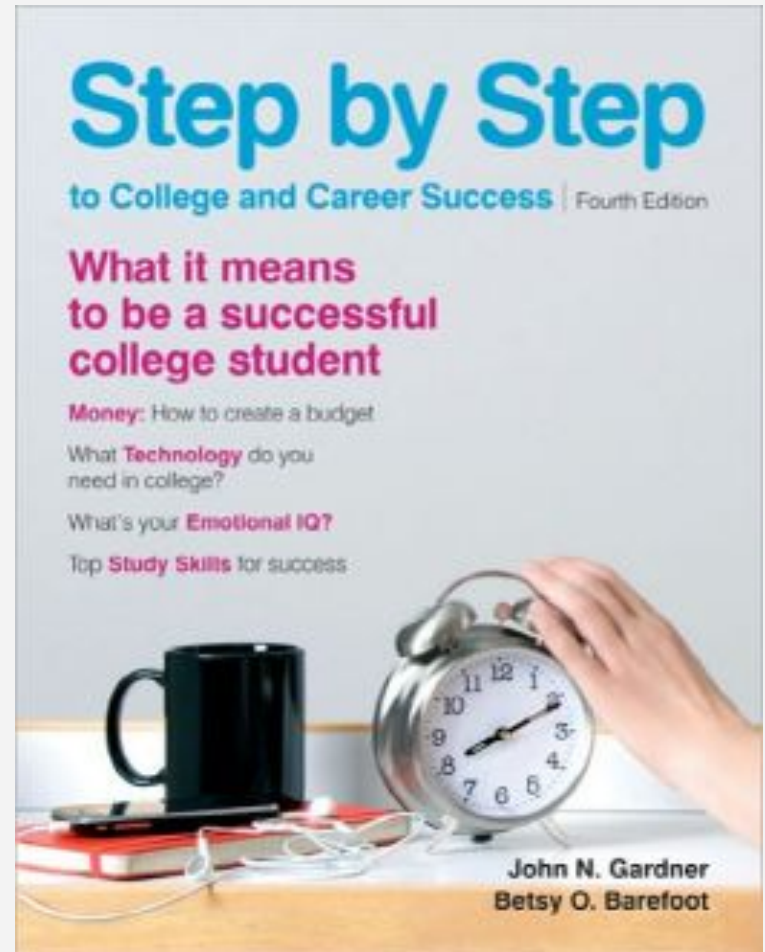

McCroskey (2002) discusses Immediacy Mehrabian (1978) as the creation of closeness; by positing that it brings students, faculty, and audiences closer together.

(Binghamton, 2015) →

What the Texts Say

- Quick and comprehensive
- Simple, yet effective speech and communication practices
- Organization & Delivery

How are YOU using Spc/Com Skills?

- What do you do in your classes?
- Presentations
- Speeches?
- Interviews?
- PowerPoint?
- Final Projects?

Challenges of Inclusion

- Including speeches in short periods
- Perhaps English skills/faculty same problem
- Does your school require Public Speaking 101
- The Speaking Center
- Faculty not fond of public speaking skills
- The comparison to writing across the curriculum

Opportunities of Inclusion

- Reinforce what is being taught elsewhere
- Make our students more confident in other communication events
- Working with students will improve faculty speech communication
- Quick one-day bootcamp if not included in your FYE syllabus

EXERCISES!

The “33” Speech

No words (minimal words)

“The Speech Off”

“Communication Skills & My Major”

Let's NOW go to Handout

National Communication Association

OK'd for distribution

Great Ideas for Teaching Students

Recall Learning Outcomes

- We talked about what the text books offer
- We analyzed our levels of use
- We discussed challenges
- We championed opportunities
- We participated in exercises
- I provided several exercises for use
- We (time permitting) made a fun story
- Hopefully NOW you can write a 5 minute intro!!

Thank You @ Keep in Touch

Chris Gurrie, The University of Tampa

FYE instructor/committee member

Coordinator of Speech Communication Program

cgurrie@ut.edu / @cgurrie / #chrisgurrie

Further reading: Huffington Post articles, tons of references for you, papers! Just ask and I will send!