B-Roll, One shot stand-up	"Kite flying goes extreme in one of the nation's fastest growing participation sports. Combining surfing, paragliding, and wakeboarding, kiteboarding is capturing the attention of water sport fanatics. I'm here in Sullivan's Island South Carolina with some experts to show us how it's done."	00:00-00:17
One shot, B-Roll	"Go out to the beach, you pump up your kite, run your lines out, make sure everything is all set to go. You have somebody launch your kite, then from there you have your kite hooked into your harness, you're flying it with your hands. This is the bar, it's really easy to hold like this and you hook in with. Then you take your board, walk out to the beach, put it on your feet, and	00:17-00:42 start riding.”

One shot, B-Roll	“Well I will tell you that big kite, it’s like a dump truck. It’s slow to start, but once you get it going, it’s hard to stop. Whereas the trainer kite is like a sportscar, it wants to fly all over the place, and you’ll see it’s very quick to maneuver, whereas the big kite doesn’t maneuver that quickly.	00:42-00:58
One shot, B-Roll	“Definitely there’s two parts to it like you have to be able to like fly the kite and control it, which is like one battle in itself, and you also have to be able to like have the board skills to like ride. So putting those two together is not necessarily as easy as, like I thought it would be a lot easier than it was.”	00:58-01:17
One shot	“The beaches of Charleston’s barrier islands provide plenty of space for practicing kiteboarding techniques, rigging,	01:17-01:30 and launching. Grab your kite and your board, and hopefully the next time the wind is up, the kites will be too. For Wave TV, I'm Betsy Bullock."
