

Senior Jake Baldwin plays the trumpet during band practice on Aug. 23. "We get to go to a lot of cool places... like Indianapolis and we're going again this year... also you meet a lot of cool people because there are 300 of us," he said. (Second from left) Junior Kofi Mosley-Kellum plays his sousaphone at practice. "It's like a huge family. If one person messes up it can affect the entire family, so we all try to push each other to be the best we can," he said.

Marching in HARMONY

(Left) Senior Nick Stefanelli plays his saxophone during practice. "I think the best part [of band] is it's like one big giant family. No matter what happens during school you can just go to the band room and you have like 300 friends," he said.
