

Call for Abstracts – Deadline Extended
University of South Carolina Nutrition Consortium
2023 Nutrition Symposium
When: Thursday, March 23rd, 2023
Where: USC Alumni Center

Call for Abstracts: University students, postdocs and trainees are invited to submit an abstract of 250 words maximum to present at the symposium. Abstracts are due by 5:00 p.m. on February 11th. We are looking to represent the latest nutrition research and practice at the University of South Carolina in poster presentation sessions. This includes, but is not limited to, the following topics:

- Ensuring food security
- Understanding and influencing food choice for health promotion
- Assessing dietary patterns in development, health, and disease
- Promoting maternal, infant, and child nutrition
- Preventing childhood obesity
- Developing and using technology to measure and promote healthy dietary intake
- Optimal nutrition for healthy aging and chronic disease prevention
- Global nutrition
- Performance nutrition
- Dietary recommendations for special populations

Format: Each 250 words maximum abstract should be formatted using the following headings:

- Objectives: State the objective the study was intended to address.
- Methods: Provide a clear, concise description of specific methods, including research design. Describe interventions, if used.
- Results: Report the most important findings, including results of analyses. Unless an abstract is focused on methods or protocols, all abstracts must include at least preliminary results.
- Conclusions: Summarize in 1 or 2 sentences the primary outcomes of the study, including their potential importance (avoid generalizations).

Process: Abstracts will be peer reviewed and selected abstracts will be programmed for poster presentation and eligible for presentation awards. Abstracts presented within the last year from national and international meetings are welcome. As a submitting author, please certify that all co-authors agree to the submission of the abstract. You will be notified the week of February 27th if your submission has been accepted.
